FRENCH NOTE RECOGNIZES AMERICAN DEBT BUT MAKES NO PROMISE OF PAYMENT

Lawrence Declares France Will Not Yield in Demand That Germany Pay Reparations Debt Before She Can Meet War Obligations —American Position of Separating Debt Funding from Reparations Is in Accord With France's

(By DAVID LAWRENCE)
(Copyright 1923)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23 — Premier Poincare's note to Great Britain is exactly what the United States government expected. This does not mean that officials here approve of the French line of reasoning but they are inclined to agree with the French premier that no good purpose is served by discussion from the housetops of the intricate problems of reparations.

In other words, an open demand by Great Britain could not have been accepted by Poincare without committing political suicide. To yield to Great Britain in the face of the whole world would have been humiliating. That is why considerably more importance is attached today to the broad hint in M. Poincare's note suggesting that the negotiations be continued with more discretion and less publicity

Altho the United States is more or less an innocent bystander in the exchange of notes between Great Britain and France there is no escaping the direct references to America's part in the financial readjustment of Europe. Naturally there is disappointment here that the French should have gone so far as to say publicly that while the war debt to America would be paid, payments would not be begun until Germany began paying reparations.

The French have determined incidentally to draw up an agreement with the United States to pay the debt. It will be in a sense a recognition of the existence of the debt

Blaze Develops In The Straw Stack On Sam Crawford Farm

THRESHERS THRU

A large modern barn, on the farm of Samuel L. Crawford, located on the Warsaw-Keene road, three miles west of Keene, was burned to the ground Thursday afternoon.

Contrary to the report circulated Friday morning the fire was not started by sparks from the engine that was used Thursday to do the annual job of threshing on the Crawford farm. The engine stood in the road north of the barn and the fire started on the south side of the building while a strong wind was blowing from the south.

The threshers were just finishing the job and some straw that could not be put in the straw-shed

CO. AGRICULTURAL BOARD MEMBERS GET FAIR PASSES

W. B. Miller, secretary of the Coshocton-co board of agriculture, received the first of the week, from G. R Lewis, manager of the Ohio State Fair, complimentary tickets to the state fair next week, for members of the Coshocton-co agricultural society. The tickets, and handsome bronze badges that accompanied them, have been mailed to the 18 members of the local board, by Mr Miller. For a number of years all county boards of agriculture from counties where fairs have been held have issued complimentary tickets to members of boards from other counties, but only in the past year has this favor been extended by the state fair management to members of county societies. This year, however, Charles V. Truax, state director of agriculture, urges all county boards to be present and to try to take home something that will be of benefit to their respective fairs and counties.

BUMPER CORN CROP EXPECTED THIS YR.

Present prospects are for one of the largest corn crops this section that Coshocton-co has known for a number of years. In every section of the county, even on the light hill soils, corn has made a strong, healthy, luxuriant growth and the plants are practically cared at this time. Fields that were seemingly badly injured by recent storms have straightened up very well.

Coshocton-co has been favored with rain and sunshine in ideal proportions, only in one or two sections have farmers reported proportionally more rain than sunshine resulting in a tall, spindling stalk growth and rendering the plant susceptible to lodging by cross blowing destructive storms and corn fields this county should have a bounteous corn crop

STOLEN ROADSTER IS RETURNED TO CHARLES HEIMAN

The stolen Packard roadster has been returned to Charles Heiman, Chestnut-st

The car was found yesterday morning, but Mr. Heiman did not receive word that his car had been found until late yesterday afternoon.

The machine had been abandoned in front of a farmer's house in the vicinity of Dresden. The farmer, believing that some one in Muskingum-co was its owner, telephoned Zanesville. The Zanesville Auto Club in turn notified Mr Heiman and later in the day officials from Dresden drove the car to Coshocton.

When found there was a little gas in the tank of the car. It is believed that the thieves knew that they were running out of gas and that they abandoned the machine before day break, fearing they might be discovered.

With the exception of a little mud on the body of the car, the auto was returned in good condition.

The Packard was stolen from Heiman's garage early Thursday morning.

INCREASE OF BENCH WARMERS DESCRIBED BY COURT BULLETIN

Someone has been desecrating the bulletin board in the lobby of the courthouse

Posted among taxpayers' notices, administrators' statements announcements of civil service examinations, highway bids and legal notices are two newspapers clippings

One announces an indignation meeting of Lawrence-co bootleggers and declares their rights are gradually being swept away by strict law enforcement

Another describes the growth of the A O E W, which has plenty of members here, who can be seen daily on the benches around the courthouse. It declares that the Ancient Order of Building Watchers is the oldest fraternal order in the world, as it was organized when the Tower of Babel was being built, and has grown steadily until it now numbers millions of members who are referred to as public spirited citizens who devote their time without pay guarding public property."

BARON KATO DIES; WAS DELEGATE TO WASH. CONFERENCE

LONDON, Aug. 24—Baron Tomosaboro Kato, premier of Japan and former admiral in the Japanese navy, is dead, said a dispatch from Tokio today. He had been ill for some time.

Baron Kato was 64 years old. He was well known in the United States having headed the Japanese delegation to the Washington conference. The baron came of a family in humble circumstances. He entered the Japanese naval school and at the outbreak of the Russo-Japanese war had risen so rapidly he was in command of a squadron.

Kato utilized his opportunity in the Russian war with brilliancy that made his name a household word in Japan.

In 1915 Kato became minister of marine in the Japanese government. He became premier in June 1923.

TOKIO, Aug. 24—The cabinet met today to discuss the selection of an acting premier to fill the post made vacant by the death of Baron Kato.

According to Japanese custom news of Baron Kato's death has not yet been officially announced by the government. It is expected within a day or two.

The death of the famous statesman is admittedly a blow to the party in power and may cause a crisis.

Those most prominently mentioned in connection with the premiership are Foreign Minister Uchida, Home Minister Mizuno and Minister of Justice Okano.

The alleged vascillation of the government over the trade negotiations may open the way for the appointment of Goto to be premier, altho Gov Saito of Korea is spoken of.

Former Premier Yamamoto who lost power following the naval scandal in 1914, may attempt to come back politically. There is sure to be a hard fight for power, and it may be a spectacular one.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE BELIEVES STRIKE OF ANTHRACITE MINERS WILL YET BE AVERTED

Hard Cider Is Seized by L. A. Dry Officers

Even Ancient Rural Beverage Is Under Ban Now

(By WILLIAM G. CAYCE)

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 24—Manufacturers of "hard" cider and dispensers of malt and hops for the home brew trade here became the targets of prohibition officers in this part of the State in the latest drive for rigid enforcement of the Volstead law.

The first victim was T. J Evans, proprietor of the Golden West Cider Company, who was arrested after 12,000 gallons of hard apple cider, said to be the property of the company were destroyed.

Other arrests were planned, but the cider makers were said to have been tipped off to the Evans incident, following which they are declared to have destroyed 25,000 gallons more of the stuff, in preference to having it fall into the hands of the authorities.

The wholesale selling price of cider is quoted from 60 cents to $1 a gallon The cider seized at the Golden West plant is said to have tested from 2 to 6 per cent alcohol.

For the last few days reports have been current at the Federal Building here that prohibition agents and United States Attorney Burke were awaiting instructions from National Prohibition Director Haynes to proceed against those business places dispensing ingredients for making beer at home.

Several arrests also have been made of merchants who dealt exclusively in beer ingerdients, but none of the cases has been finally disposed of, there being a conflict in court decisions, and no precedent to go by.

Circulars from Washington, however, lay great stress upon a victory prohibition won in the Federal Court at Grand Rapids, Mich., where the district judge sentenced one merchant to 14 months in prison and fined him $1,000. The merchant was advertising and selling severly widely known brands of malt and other ingredients. In several Federal courts in the East and Mid-Western States recently juries have convicted defendants in such cases, it was stated.

JUDGE WHO GAVE FREAK SENTENCES RESIGNS HIS JOB

LIMA, O., Aug. 24—Emmett J. Jackson, judge of the criminal court of Lima, whose freak sentences have won his world wide notoriety, has resigned, effective immediately, to become associated with the Standard Oil interests. His most recent publicity gaining sentences were confinement of a would-be suicide in the county morgue, with four dead bodies, for one night, to cure him of the self-destruction "complex", confinement of an habitual drunkard in a cell filled with confiscated liquor, under orders not to touch a drop, to convince him that the wish to become intoxicated was the father of the habit Several days ago, a wandering negro minstrel, arrested for playing a guitar on the streets, without a permit, was released when he demonstrated in court that his music was good.

ARRESTED FOR MISCONDUCT

Eliza Young, of Newark, was arrested last night on a charge of disorderly conduct by Officer Teague, was fined $25 and costs, and put on a train for Newark

Mayor Tash withheld details of the arrest refusing to say where Young had been arrested or what he had been doing, other than that he had been making "insulting remarks"

EVERY CITY A 'SPOTLESS TOWN,' FOUR HOURS A DAY'S WORK, IN 2023, SAYS STEINMETZ

Next Century Will Solve All Problems That Vex Us He Predicts—Sees Slavs As Dominant Race

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Aug. 24—Dr. Charles P. Steinmetz, the electrical wizard, believes the time is coming when there will be no long back-breaking drudgery, when people will toil not more than four hours a day and in the remainder of their time will be able to follow their natural bends.

The wizard visualizes an amazing transformation in life in 2023.

When another century has rolled into history people will be more amazed at our helpfulness in our struggle for advancement than we are in looking back on the almost primitive days when the steamboat first appeared on the Hudson River.

Palls of smoke no longer will hang over cities. Streets will be free of refuse. People will be healthier in the centres of population Every city will be a "spotless town." Much of this great transformation is to be the work of electricity.

The glimpse of the distant future as the great electrical wonder worker views it is contained in an article by him released for publication today.

ENGINEERS HOPE TO GET RAISE BY PEACEFUL MEANS

CLEVELAND, Aug. 24—Officials of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers—the only one of the "Big Four" railroad operating brotherhoods not yet on record as demanding an increase of wages for their members when present contracts expire with the carriers of the United States, do not believe that formal action by the organization will be necessary to obtain a substantial increase, it was learned authoritatively today

Warren S. Stone, grand chief and other leaders of the brotherhood considered one of the most conservative labor unions in the United States refused to be directly quoted but the inference was left that the engineers would not be left out in the cold with the three other operating unions asking for more pay for their men

Were it not that public opinion makes it necessary, it was said, we believe an increase will come as a matter of course The railroad officials know that the engineers are entitled to more pay and there will be no difficulty when our present contracts expire, in negotiating new contracts with substantial increases

In the meantime, officials of the brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen closely allied with the engineers and the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and Order of Railroad Conductors as well as the Switchmens Union of North America with headquarters at Buffalo are going ahead with plans to demand a restoration of the cut imposed by the railway labor board in July, 1921

GRIFFIS BACKED BY WEALTHY AMERICAN TO GET BERGDOLL

WUERZBERG, Germany, Aug 24—"If the Germans want to make a martyr of me, all right; I don't care, but it would be a mistake," declared Lieut. C H. Griffis, of Hamilton, Ohio, one of the members of the band that tried to kidnap Grover Cleveland Bergdoll The message was sent thru a third party who had a long talk with Griffis in his cell "If the Germans attempt that, it will alienate American sympathy away from Germany That is what we want to do anyway," Griffis remarked

No reporters are admitted to see Griffis nor his companion, Victor Neilson who is also in jail in Wuerzberg They managed to communicate their views to International News Service thru an underground channel

Griffis intimated that a well known and influential man in the United States was the directing genius behind the attempt to seize Bergdoll, "dead or alive"

This man also is said to have furnished the money Griffis is said to have made the remark that this American was prepared "to back us to the limit"

"During the war," said Griffis "I admitted German heroism even tho they were our enemies Now I should think the Germans could understand my motive and not sympathize with a coward I only did my duty as I did in the World war I could not expect Bergdoll to do his any more than he did in the war This is an American affair The Germans should not worry about it

"I am proud of what little I had to do with the kidnapping I am sure the people at home understand my noble motives That is all I care about

"I am not worrying I have funds Certain parties in the United States are willing to back me to the limit"

Friends have hired Herr Sack of Wiesbaden, one of the best criminal lawyers in Germany to defend Griffis and Neilson

Plans Are Formulated To Speed Delivery Of Fuel Substitutes In Case Production Is Suspended After August 31—Position Of Soft Coal Miners Kept Secret With Chiefs Conferring

By KENNETH CLARK.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24. — Despite menacing reports from Atlantic City, President Coolidge still entertains unshaken hope today that anthracite operators and miners by voluntary resumption of negotiations will avert a hard coal strike.

At the same time, however, the executive, ready for any eventualities has prepared for nation wide distribution of substitutes for hard coal. The federal government contemplates no immediate step to bring about peace by inviting the warring factions back to the council table.

Negotiations are being conducted by the administration to make permanent the substitute organization so that whenever a coal strike threatens in the future the country will be assurred a steady supply of fuel.

Because of the belief that government interference at this moment not only would be met with failure, but would add complexity to an already perplexing situation, it was declared at the whitehouse today that both President Coolidge and John Hays Hammond, chairman of the United States coal commission feel the next move must, and will come from Atlantic City where the operators and miners are encamped. The growing belief in well informed circles here is that the disputants, now that they have seen the government's promise to supply the country with fuel regardless of a strike is not an idle boast or a mere threat but one capable of actual fulfillment, will, perhaps, reluctantly resume wage discussions which have broken down twice within a month.

This, particularly has been the optimistic view held by Hammond, who all along has expressed the belief there would be no strike It was pointed out that the administration plan is a sanctioned boycott of hard coal In the event of a strike, the country would become accustomed to buying substitutes with the possibility that the demand for hard coal thereby would be materially lessened for all time. This would be little short of a calamity to both operators and miners, a move which neither well could afford to make, it was declared.

So well satisfied is the administration that a suspension of hard coal production would not injure the country because of the distribution plan, reports that bituminous workers mgiht "go on vacation" in sympathy for anthracite miners were generally disparaged.

Under law the office of the federal fuel distributor expires on

Stimulation of Mexican Trade Is Looked For

WASHINGTON, Aug 24 One of the first tangible results of the recognition of Mexico by the United States will be an immediate stimulation in the trade between the two countries, officials of the department of commerce said today

In anticipation of the forthcoming of resumption of diplomatic relations Secretary Hoover has ordered an inquiry to determine the particular needs of Mexico for American goods so that manufacturers in the United States can make their plans accordingly

Trade across the Rio Grande has been in a state of partial recognition since recognition was withdrawn in 1920 Many manufacturers in this country who specialize in Latin American needs are losing the Mexico markets

A steady flow of capital, chiefly for the purpose of mineral exploitation is expected to follow the resumption of political relations Larger sums will also be spent in purchasing Mexican products for export to the United States It is expected exports to Mexico will double during the next fiscal year as Mexico is in need of farm machinery and other goods supplied by American merchants

REGULARS AND GREYS WIN; EXCURSION TO MANSFIELD SUNDAY

REGULARS GRAB ABBREVIATED SET-TO FROM STARK-CO ICE CREAM MAKERS HERE THURSDAY

Exciting League Game Is Called With Half of Eighth Inning Unplayed, On Account of Darkness—Score Stood 5 to 4, But Canton's Run in Eighth Didn't Count—Sunday's Game at Mansfield

The Coshocton Regulars continued their upward climb toward the Eastern Ohio League pennant Thursday, defeating the Canton Noakers by a score of 5 to 3 in 7 innings at Lake Park.

At the close of the first half of the eighth it was too dark to continue the game. Canton made one score in her half of the eighth.

Canton drew first blood in the opening inning. W. Moore popped to Edwards E. Moore walked. Moore scored from first after Zandt had singled and the ball hopped past Unger in right. Roth fanned and Swaney popped to Edwards

The Regulars were determined to get back what they had lost in the first half. Atchinson flied out to right Witt grounded out, Zandt to Roth. Edwards singled and was safe at second when the second baseman dropped Marr's throw to catch the runner. Edwards scored on Harry Storch's double down the third base line The ball hugged the left field foul line. Unger rolled out Zandt to Roth.

The two teams were held scoreless until the fifth inning when Robertson's men bunched their hits and scored four markers. Four hits, a walk, a passed ball and a balk helped the Regulars. The ice cream makers eased in a tally in the sixth and another in the seventh. In the first of the eighth, Rasnick weakened and allowed the Noakers to push across a tally. Zandt grounded out, Edwards to Gygli Roth singled and was advanced to third on Swaney's bingle. Malaney walked and filled the bases. Stitz was called out on strikes. Rasnick walked in a run when he gave Marr a free ticket to first base At this moment Manager Robertson yanked Rasnick and put in Orve Rea. Gordon went in to pinch hit for Biggs Gordon was out on strikes.

Rasnick hurled a fairly good game with the exception of six walks. The ice cream makers netted two bingles in the first of the eighth. Biggs was effective until he weakened in the fifth. He regained his grip and held the Regs. in the two following innings

In the absence of Peg. Evans, who was out of the lineup on account of the death of a relative, "Buck" Atchinson, outfielder, covered third. He played a creditable game at the third sack and figured in the Regulars' only double play of the game when he caught W Moore's infield fly and threw out Biggs at first.

Vance Greber made his first appearance in the outfield for the Regulars last evening. He was given a big hand when he came to bat Vance got a hard bingle thru the second baseman. It was too hot to handle. The fans like Greber. The management feels confident that the big boy will be a great help to the team for the remainder of this season. He accepted one chance in the outfield.

On Saturday the Regulars journey to Akron where they will cross bats with Jim Vaughn's General Tires. Bill Robertson is slated to pitch against the Generals. Robertson feels sure that his right wing is in shape to give Vaughn another trouncing

On Sunday Coshocton will go to Mansfield accompanied by probably 500 fans.

The excursion leaves Coshocton at 9:45 o'clock Sunday morning with ten coaches and a baggage coach. The American Legion band will make the trip with the team and fans. It will be Coshocton Day at Mansfield. More than 400 have already purchased tickets.

"THERE are thousands of you men and women, just like I once was—slaves to rheumatism, muscle pains, joint pains, and horrible stiffness. I had the wrong idea about rheumatism for years. I didn't realize that increasing blood-cells had the effect of completely knocking out rheumatic impurities from the system. That is why I began using S. S. S! Today I have the strength I used to have years ago! I don't use my crutches any more" S S S makes people talk about themselves the way it builds up their strength. Start S S S. today for that rheumatism. You'll feel the difference shortly.

S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

GIRLS WHO HAVE PIMPLES OR 'BLOTCHY' FACE ERUPTIONS

Should Make This Simple Test That Never Fails

First look into your mirror and carefully study the condition of your face. Count the pimples or "Blotches" and notice their size and exact location. Then go to any good druggist, and obtain a trial (35-cent size) of Noxzema—the new snow-white greasless cream that never stains—and use it each night according to directions for just one week, then go back to your mirror and see the results. This is a simple, inexpensive test that never fails and your own mirror cannot lie!

Noxzema is entirely different from the usual "mussy" salve, that stains and smells like tar, for it is a pure, white, fragrant cream that rubs right in without leaving grease or stain.

If you want to be free from Pimples, Facial Eruptions or some fiery skin irritation start this simple test tonight. You'll be surprised to see how beautiful your skin can really be.

WILLY EARTHWORM'S SEARCH FOR HAPPINESS.

WILLY EARTHWORM stuck his head out of his doorway and stretching his neck to its fullest, looked around.

A crowd of wee ants were very busy, moving from the side of a rock near the roadway over to the foot of the maple tree.

They just barely nodded when they glanced up and saw Willy Earthworm looking at them.

"Moving?" he asked the nearest ant. "If I pulled things up like that, I'd move further away."

The ants paid no attention to him. They went on with their work, and Willy Earthworm, much disgusted, crawled out of his doorway, grumbling and grunting to himself about folks who were easily pleased. Then he started off across the ground.

"Some folks are satisfied with most anything," he said to himself. "You'd better hurry before it rains," he added aloud to Mrs. Ant. She nodded and laughed.

"We're almost through, so let it rain," she called back. Willy Earthworm crawled out onto the big road.

"I've often thought I'd try and find the road to happiness," he

"Please Help Me Out!"

grumbled to himself as he jogged along, "and I mean to do it to-day or know the reason why."

Just then he heard some one crying and turned toward the bushes to see who it was. He found Mrs. Blue-Bottle Fly fastened in Lazy Spider's web.

"Oh, please, Mr. Earthworm, please help me out," she begged, with tears rolling down her face. "My children will starve if Lazy Spider returns and finds me here."

Willy Earthworm looked at the fly and at the sky filled with threatening clouds. Then he crawled up to the edge of the bush and tore the spiders-web so that Mrs. Blue-Bottle Fly could get out.

She thanked him, spread her wings and hurried away.

Willy Earthworm trotted on a wee bit further, but he was stopped this time by a dear little wild rose bush. She was waving back and forth in the wind, sighing as if her heart would break.

"I guess you would sigh, too, if you were in my place," she said as Willy Earthworm stopped to see the cause of her trouble. "All the toads who have been taking care of this part of the meadow have gone down for a swim in the pond. Here comes a rain. The earth is so hard under me that the water never will soak in and I'm famished for a drink."

Willy Earthworm never said a word, but he went right to boring down in the ground under Wild Rose-Bush. By the time the rain began to fall the earth around her roots was nice and soft. She had a wonderful drink of water. And she couldn't praise Willy Earthworm enough.

"I started out to find the road to happiness," Willy Earthworm laughed as the rain pattered harder and harder on him, "and I found it nearer home than I thought I would. It has made me happy to help them, so I believe I'm on the right road."

Away he crawled in the pouring rain. He had no umbrella or hat, but the worried, fretted look was gone from his face. Willy Earthworm was really happy for the first time in his life.

MY HUSBAND'S LOVE

Adele Garrison's New Phase of

Revelations of a Wife

Copyright, 1923, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

The Way Katherine Leaped to the Emergency.

THE mother of a child over one year old is generally like a well-trained fireman in her ability to awaken from sleep and slide down the pole without loss of time.

I had no knowledge of the meaning of the hoarse, strangled noise I had just heard from my mother-in-law's room—for I never had heard anything just like it—but that it meant illness or danger for my small son, I knew instinctively. And even as I sprang from the bed, I thrust my feet into my felt bedroom slippers, and snatching my bathrobe put it on as I ran down the corridor.

Swift as I was, however, Katherine reached my mother-in-law's door at the same second I did. I pushed the door open unceremoniously, asking wildly as I did so:

"Oh! What is it?"

"Croup, by the sound," Katherine returned laconically, and then, with a little cry, I ran forward to the bed, where Junior was standing upright, his eyes glazed in the agony of getting his breath, his face dark and convulsed with fright, and a brassy, raucous, horrible sound issuing from his contorted lips. His grandmother—her face gray with fright—was holding his thrashing little body as best she could, and she spoke tensely as she saw us.

"It's one of the worst croup cases I ever saw. Do something, quickly."

"This minute," Katherine returned composedly, even cheerily, and then I saw, what my fright had not permitted me to notice before, that she had in her hands a steaming teakettle, a basin and a bottle.

"Give him to Madge, Mother Graham," Katherine said in composed, assured tones. "She is stronger and can hold him firmly, and I need you to hold the blanket. You are used to croup and she isn't."

Quick Relief.

When there is a real emergency my mother-in-law rises to it wonderfully. There was no hint of her usual pique for any infringement of her authority in her prompt surrendering of the idolized little body to my grasp.

"Take him in your arms and sit in this chair," Katherine directed, busy in pouring boiling water from the kettle into the basin. "Keep his arms and legs down so that he can't upset this."

She had added the contents of the bottle to the steaming water in the basin as she spoke, and she turned to my mother-in-law, who, with evident understanding of her wishes, was standing close by me with a big and thick blanket spread out over her arms.

"All ready," she said. "Put it over both heads. This will be unpleasant, Madge, but it can't be helped."

The thick folds of the blanket enveloped my head, the upper portion of my body and the entire figure of Junior. Then the lower edge of the blanket was lifted and Katherine's hand thrust in the steaming basin.

"Hold his face as close to it as you can without burning him," she directed, and I obeyed her, half-strangled myself, with the fumes coming from the basin. But in only a few seconds the awful choking ceased, and I felt my little lad's tense body relax against me.

"Grannie's Lamb."

"There, that will do for a little!" Katherine decided. "Just hand me that other blanket, please. Thank you. Now if you'll ring the bell for Katie, please. We must have a fire here right away."

I heard my mother-in-law's footsteps going to the side of the room where she has had a bell installed so that she may summon my little maid at her convenience.

It is an arrangement at which I have rebelled secretly, and I know Katie detests it, but now I was devoutly thankful for it. And then the swathing blanket was lifted from me, and another blanket wrapped quickly around Junior, while Katherine wiped the steam from his face.

"He'll do for a few minutes," she said, looking at him gravely. "I'll get something to give him."

"For a few minutes?" I echoed, panic-stricken. "Do you mean he's going to have another of these things?"

"We're in for a fight," she answered, "but don't lose your nerve. No child ever died of croup yet. It gives most parents heart failure, though."

She was out of the room as she spoke, and I heard her fleet feet running down the hall. I clasped my baby boy closer and saw that he was too exhausted by his paroxysm to move or cry. Mother Graham came back into the room and, white-faced, bent above him.

"Granzie's lamb," she said unsteadily, and there was room in my heart beside my own anxiety for a profound pity for her. My curiosity stirred feebly also, for there was something in her tortured eyes even more poignant than normal anxiety would bring there.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:
I am a girl of twenty. I care very much for a certain young man and my parents approve of him. He has asked me to marry him, to which I assented. But lately he seems to have something worrying him. Do advise me what to do to help him. BETTY.

BETTY: Ask the young man frankly if there is anything you could do to help him and suggest that it might make him feel better if he talked it over with you.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE.
I am in love with a young man going with a young man two but I do not know. At times he acts as if he does and at others as if he does not. How can I find out whether he loves me, and if he does not, how may I win his affection? GREY EYES.

GREY EYES. There is nothing you can do to force a young man's love or attentions, my dear, and the only way you will ever know whether this man does love you is in case he asks you to be his wife.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:
I am a girl of nineteen and am going with a young man two years my senior.

He always tells me that he loves me very much, but when we are at a dance or party he does not seem to care for me. We were am going with a young man two never set the day. So will you please tell me whether I should break the engagement and go with some of my other young men friends? Or should I wait a little longer? VERY POPULAR.

VERY POPULAR: If you really love this young man, wait for him my dear. Then, when he is in a position to marry you he will surely ask you to set the day.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:
I am a girl in my teens. I am very much for a young man I met but have seen only a few times.

Would you please tell me how I can attract the attentions of this young man? I wish to become better acquainted with him. FRITZ.

FRITZ. Invite the young man to call at your home. This is the only proper way to start a friendship.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of general interest from girl readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her, in care of this office.

HEROINES OF HISTORY

Significant Incidents in the Lives of Famous Women

By MARK STUYVESANT

A Glimpse Into the Turbulent Life of Mary, Queen of Scots.

"IT came with a lass and it will go with a lass." These were the dying words of James V of Scotland, upon being told that a daughter had been born to him.

It was the crown of which he spoke, for it had first come to the daughter of Robert Bruce and it was this baby girl, born a few hours before his death, who was to wear the crown of Scotland with such sorrow and tragedy—for she was Mary, Queen of Scots.

When a very small child—to insure her safety against the English—Mary was sent to France. There she was educated and brought up in the court of France, although she had been crowned Queen of Scotland at Stirling Castle, in 1543, when she was a year old.

Mary grew up to be a very beautiful and fascinating girl. When her marriage to the Dauphin, Francis II, took place in the Cathedral of Notre Dame, Paris, there was much rejoicing at the prospect of joining the kingdoms of France and Scotland and, possibly, England.

She Became Queen of France as Well as Scotland.

For Mary was a great granddaughter of Henry VII of England. Between her and the English throne was only Mary Tudor.

A year after her marriage, Henry II of France died, and Francis and Mary were crowned King and Queen of France. About this time Mary Tudor, who was then Queen of England, died and Elizabeth was made Queen.

Immediately Mary Stuart laid claim to the English throne, denouncing Elizabeth's right to the crown.

Now, indeed, did the union of the three great kingdoms seem possible, but in less than a year Francis II, Mary's husband, died and the young widow returned to Scotland after having been Queen of France only a year.

She was not only a widow now, but an orphan, for her mother, who had ruled in her place in Scotland, had died. So Mary determined to rule Scotland herself.

Mary had been brought up in the Catholic faith in France and when she returned to her own country, over which a great wave of Protestantism had swept, she did not find the sympathy or support she expected and she gave offense to the followers of John Knox, who led the Protestants.

Unfortunately, at that time, Mary contracted a marriage with her handsome young cousin, Lord Darnley, which ended unhappily as a result of the confidence and favors which she granted to her secretary, David Rizzio.

Before her eyes, Darnley and several nobles murdered Rizzio, and immediately a great hatred for Darnley filled her heart and, with her consent, Darnley was murdered. A year later, she married the Earl of Bothwell, whom all considered the murderer of her husband.

Immediately Mary was seized by the Scottish lords and imprisoned in Lochleven Castle and was forced to abdicate her throne in favor of her son, James VI. Her friends rallied to her aid and arranged for her escape. In boy's clothes she fled across the Solway to England and implored the protection of Queen Elizabeth.

But Elizabeth, fearing that her enemies might put Mary on the throne of England, seized her and cast her into prison where she remained for eighteen years.

During those long years there were many plots and schemes to free the imprisoned Scottish Queen. But it was the plot arranged by a young man named Babington which resulted disastrously.

To Elizabeth was brought a letter, supposed to have been written by Mary, in which she approved of the plot. For this grave offense, Mary was condemned to death by Elizabeth, on the grounds of treason against the Queen of England.

In February, 1587, at Fotheringay Castle, after eighteen years of imprisonment, this wretched Queen mounted the scaffold and laid down her head for the executioner. Thus ended the life of Mary, Queen of Scots, which had been one of intrigue, turmoil and tragedy.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

"Everything About the House Helps to Make the Home"

By WANDA BARTON

Are You Furnishing a College Boy's or Girl's Room?

COLLEGE days will soon be here, and so the need again presents itself of making the college rooms of our sons and daughters as homelike as possible by the addition of draperies, cushions, bed and couch covers and many other comforts.

Materials for these things should be very carefully chosen, for if they are attractively made up they are very likely to be borrowed for entertainments or plays to help "dress the stage." Then, too, these things get less care and harder wear at school than at home. Some mothers make these college "comforts" as vacation work, and many lovely ideas are carried out in this way.

A charming set for a girl's room consisted of draperies for two windows, bed and couch covers, cushions, table cover and panels for a mission screen six feet tall and having four folds. The material used was soft tan monk's cloth. This material is durable and fringes easily, and the perfect weave makes cross-stitch possible without stamping. All sewing of hems and seaming should be done with ravelings kept from the fringing. Braided and tied fringe forming its own tassel at the ends is liked by many, but the knotted fringe is softer in appearance.

The set referred to was done with a cross-stitch border, just above the knotted fringe, three inches wide. The colors used were black, pale green, rose pink, old blue, corn color and lilac, the black forming the squares for the arabesques in the soft colors. For the draperies the border was wider on the bottom and narrow at the sides and across the tops. In the centre of the bed and couch covers a large arabesque was used. Across the corner of each piece the girl's initials were done in black, an inch and a half tall. On the screen a narrow border was used with an arabesque in the centre of each panel. The entire set was serviceable and very attractive.

Another set which was rather more delicate in coloring, but exceedingly suitable for its blonde owner, was one of unbleached muslin. The hems were strips of delicate green linen, turned back on the right side and couched in place with black wool. The "bubble border" eight inches wide, was formed of a slim black line, sun-bonneted girl tossing bubbles of pastel-shaded organdy. The bubbles were attached by fine buttonhole stitching. The effect was very delicate, and the bubbles looked quite real.

Still another unbleached set had Dutch blue decorations in boats and wee Dutch men and maidens dancing in typical wooden shoes. The fad for the so-called "campus" bags brings out many odd designs. Some match their room fittings, but most of them are in serviceable tans or grays done with peasant embroidery. The embroidered straps are long enough to carry the bags over the shoulder knapsack fashion. The size of the bags varies with individual needs and taste.

Browns and tans are the favorite colorings for the fittings of a boy's room. Hard wear is expected, and delicate coverings are out of place. Brown linen with tan trimmings is pretty, but does not light up the room as well as draperies of tan monk's cloth, art canvas, burlap or denim do. Any of the tan materials embroidered with peasant colorings in wools, are both serviceable and pretty.

Strange as it may seem, many men like red, and a number of attractive sets have been made of white, unbleached muslin with borders and trimmings of red-and-white plaid gingham, and some with plain turkey-red calico used for borders. These sets are very effective and cheery-looking, but present a laundry problem which must be watched and met. In this case it is wise to make pieces such as curtains large enough not to be affected by shrinkage. The top of the curtains should have a roomy turnover to slip easily onto the poles after washing. Some young men don't mind this occasional bother for the sake of the attractive appearance of their rooms, but for those who object to the bother it is wiser to make draperies of materials that may be used all season without laundering.

YOUR HEALTH

Here Are Vital Hints on Preparing Baby's Food

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

THERE are certain general rules which may be laid down for the preparation of food for a baby. Let it be understood, however, that these are only general rules and that a given baby may not thrive on the formula usually prescribed for one of his age and condition.

The best advice I can give a mother whose baby is not thriving is to see her family doctor, or to visit a hospital clinic, where Baby will be examined and advice given. Do not trust yourself to persist in the feeding methods you used successfully with an older child. If your baby is not doing well there is something wrong and, nine times out of ten, that something wrong relates to the feeding.

Even when the proper formula has been prescribed, it will not accomplish its purpose unless it is properly prepared. It is not properly prepared unless with painstaking care and infinite pains the mother adheres to the very letter of the law.

Your father and mother, and certainly your grandparents, are likely to laugh at the "germ theory." But, even though they deny the scientific foundations of the accepted theory of disease, they will not reject the old saying that "cleanliness is next to godliness." I am sure no one doubts the importance of clean hands, clean utensils or clean milk. We do not need to argue about germs, but we can agree that absolute cleanliness is necessary to keep Baby well.

When you can fruit you always boil the product and put it in cans which have been scalded. If you fail in any step you know the canned stuff will spoil. Something happens which makes it deadly to eat.

Bear these things in mind when you are preparing the food for your baby. His little stomach is very delicate. His hold on life is not very secure. He cannot resist disease as we can.

Everything used in preparing the milk and all the food and drink Baby is to have, must be boiled and handled with clean hands. It must be kept in a clean place, away from all casual contact, and must not be touched by anybody except yourself, or someone especially instructed for this duty.

In general, the formula for an infant consists of whole milk, modified by the addition of varying quantities of cereal gruel, sugar of milk, lime water and plain water. This mixture must be accurately put together, using exactly the prescribed amount of each ingredient.

It is put into feeding bottles which have been thoroughly boiled. The bottles are stopped with clean absorbent cotton and put on ice till needed. Not more than enough for one day's feeding should be prepared.

When time for the feeding has arrived, a bottle is placed on the stove in a pan of warm water and heated to bodily temperature. This can be tested by shaking a drop of the milk on the back of your hand.

When the ingredients are properly warmed, a rubber nipple is placed on the bottle. The nipple has been boiled in the morning and placed in a boracic acid solution, which, in its turn, has been previously boiled.

All this, dear mother, means trouble and time, but the abounding health of your infant is reward enough. Isn't it?

Answers to Health Questions.

L. G. Q.—My finger joints are commencing to swell and I have pain in them occasionally. I am afraid that I may be developing arthritis. I have heard that there is a serum for this condition and I would like to know whether you think this treatment would help me?

A.—You should have an examination to determine definitely the cause of the swelling, and if it is due to arthritis, as you seem to think it is, by all means have the serum treatment. The physician who examines you will advise you about treatment.

T. F. Q.—Will you please tell me whether meat or ice cream is fattening?

2.—Recently I had a tooth drawn and ever since then whenever I chew any food there is a cracking sound. What would you advise me to do?

A.—Meat, if it is lean, is not fattening. Ice cream is fattening.

2.—It would be better for you to have an X-ray taken to see whether there is a loose particle of bone that is causing the trouble.

J. C. D. Q.—Will you please tell me whether oranges or any other fruit causes constipation or helps to cause it?

A.—No, fruit does not cause constipation, as fruit, with the exception of certain berries, is laxative.

A READER. Q.—Will you please tell me what diet is best for a sick stomach? My mother is troubled after eating certain foods, such as fried foods, greasy foods or rich foods.

A.—Apparently your mother is suffering from hyperacidity, but it would be well to have an X-ray taken to find the cause of the trouble. If the condition proves to be hyperacidity, I will gladly furnish you with information on the treatment of this trouble on receipt of a self-addressed, stamped envelope. Kindly restate your question also.

Diary of a Fashion Model

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

She Chats About a Late-Summer Evening Dress.

"IT'S such a problem, planning frocks for the last days of real Summer," Miss Lamar complained.

"If I could have as many lovely things as you I'd never object to the actual planning," I thought to myself.

"You see, I hate to buy a real Fall evening gown when there is still time to wear a sure enough summery one," she explained.

"You seem to cling to the last days of Summer," I remarked.

"Indeed I so," she replied with a smile. "I feel that Winter lasts long enough after it comes, and I stick to my Summer frocks till I'm actually chilly with them on."

"I think you are very wise to choose a late Summer evening frock in white," I counseled. "There's nothing lovelier, and a white dress is most becoming to you."

"Do you think I'd be foolish to get an organdie this late?" she asked.

"Indeed I don't," I advised her. "An organdie evening frock is more unusual than an organdie afternoon frock, you know. As long as you haven't had an organdie for evening, I think you should before the Summer grows any older."

"Exactly what I wanted you to say," the client answered me.

"Now do let this helpful young lady model the frock for me," she urged, turning to the saleswoman in attendance. "I like to think I look just like her in the frocks; get here," she added in a most flattering tone as I moved away to the mannikins' room.

The saleswoman had asked me to model the newest white organdie evening gown.

"Madame designed several evening organdies recently," she explained to the client. "They've gone so quickly. We've sold two of the original models, but there are still two smart ones left."

I stepped into the newest one, adjusted a pair of long earrings, and strolled leisurely out upon the small stage.

"Too adorable," the client enthused and from this superlative I felt rather sure she meant to take it.

"It feels like party days when I was a child," I said to her, laughingly.

Two-Toned Green Ribbon Trims This White Organdie Dance Frock.

Organdie was as fine as could be and I felt as if I were too pure and white to touch anything.

"It was a lovely sheer thing. The "Only you'd never have been wearing a neckline that almost slipped off either shoulder then," she reminded me.

"This neck treatment will be lovely on you, Miss Lamar," she remarked. "You have perfect shoulders and you may as well know it."

"What I like is the use of the green ribbon," Miss Lamar replied, choosing to pass off the flowery remark without noticing it.

Green satin ribbon made little shirred wheels around the bottom of the skirt. A light tone of the green made the smaller top wheels and darker green made the larger wheels below.

I turned about so she could see the big bow of darker green that finished the girdle at the back. Around the waist were the same shirred wheels of ribbon, these using the lighter green.

"It's as charming and dainty a frock as ever I've seen, and I'm sure it will help me to finish the Summer right," Miss Lamar said.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

FRIDAY, AUGUST 24.

Anxious and perplexing conditions are the presage of this day's lunar and mutual directions. There is the prospect of an unsettled and restless state of mind, but change may be hazardous. Avoid speculation and see that the money is kept safe or handled conservatively. Papers should be signed cautiously and the social behavior should be particularly discreet.

Those whose birthday it is have the presage of an anxious and unsettled year, but they should suppress the desire for change. They should shun speculation and handle funds judiciously. A child born on this day may have a restless disposition unless it is carefully trained. It may succeed best in the employment of others. It may also have the tendency to be lavish in the handling of money, unless it be carefully trained in early youth.

Without Utilities

Said Floyd W. Parsons in a recent address:

Next to God and religion, the utilities are the most important things in our lives. Without our utilities, we could not even live in our big cities, and today's civilization would be as dead as Marlow's ghost. Yet for a good many years the purveyors of power, heat, light, transportation and communication have had a difficult time to keep their feet on solid ground and walk without tottering. They have been the footballs of every scheming politician, and have been regulated, baited and starved financially, until many of them gave up the struggle, locked the front door and hung crape on the knob.

The average citizen has become so accustomed to the service the utilities render that now he merely takes them for granted, and the gravest mistake that has been made by our public service executives has been their long submission to this state of public indifference.

FRENCH NOTE

and an answer to the criticism which has been levelled at France to the effect that she has never formally acknowledged her war debt but on the contrary has indicated thru some of her statesmen, as for instance Mr. Loucheur, that the debt would be repudiated.

Premier Poincare's statement that the forthcoming negotiations with America are intended to bring about a definite agreement to pay was noted here as significant. The exact words of the French premier are:

"We wish to pay our debts both our debts toward the United States and our debts toward Great Britain. We cannot accord preference to one or the other. We cannot, therefore bring about a solidarity with Germany for the payment of the debt of England to the United States. We cannot, on the other hand abandon our whole share of bonds for partial settlement of the interallied debts. We should in any case be obliged to come to an agreement in advance with the government of the United States which also being our creditor has interest in seeing that our financial position is not made worse."

The interpretation of the foregoing heard today is that France believes America cannot exert pressure to force France to pay her debts before German reparations are forthcoming and that America will not fall in with the British plans for closer relationship with Germany which might hinder the reconstruction or productivity of France.

The American position is quite simple. To the extent that France declares reparations must be settled apart from the question of inter-allied war debts the United States is in hearty accord with the French position. But to withhold making an agreement to pay the United States until payments are actually received from Germany is, in the opinion of responsible people here, an utterly untenable theory of fair dealing as between debtor and creditor. America asked no questions of Fresno when the money was originally lent. No strings were attached. Three and a half billion dollars were furnished by the American people thru liberty loan drives and no French official said anything about paying it back only when Germany would recover sufficiently to pay it after defeat. To transfer the burden to Germany does not sit well in official quarters. The British made their agreement without saying anything about getting income from Germany or France or any other countries now owing her money. The French capacity to pay America apart from any payments that may come to France from Germany is the only factor that congress is likely to consider when any question of funding the French debt is debated there. And there is a growing opinion here that the French can pay their debt to America irrespective of Germany's ability to pay France. Should the French effort be to involve the United States into a situation whereby America might be expected to exert pressure on Germany to compel her to pay France or Britain the sums which America is expecting to get from France and Britain that effort is doomed to failure.

It has been tried too often in diplomacy heretofore and has been met by the Wilson and Harding administrations with a flat rejection and the same answer is assured from President Coolidge. He will undoubtedly follow the convictions of Secretary Hughes who favors the policy of separating war debts from reparations and of having the latter settled first independently of the United States.

THE BEAUTY OF HEALTH

Newspapers and magazines are devoting columns to magic or over-night beautifiers. There is a beauty in health that is far more attractive to men than more regularity of features or a made-up complexion. Health should be the first essential of women who want to win and hold admiration, respect and love. At the first indication of ill health as indicated by dark circles under the eyes, a sallow complexion, headache, backache, pain in the side, nervousness, irritability and melancholia women should take Lydia E. The Mad Tariff Chemical Schedule

Section 1 of the mad tariff of 1922, inclusive of dyes, oils and paints, covers in its ninety-three paragrephs hundreds of separate items, comprising such mouthfuls as dimethylphenylbenzylammonium, nitrotoluylenediamine and tetramethyldiamiuobenzophenone. No one knows what all of it means; what its several provisions mean is known only to those in whose interest experts drafted them, and the great body of citizens whom it indirectly taxes do not know what any of it means.

Chemicals, especially dyestuffs, are the raw materials for a great proportion of our manufactures, especially textiles, so that every cotton and woolen mill in the country is handicapped by high duties on bleaches and dyes, and therefore in turn asks higher duties and multiplies prices on its products. Bleaching powder, or "chlorinated lime," which paid 1-10 cent per pound under the Underwood 1913 Tariff, is trebled to 3-10 cents per pound, or $6 00 per ton, under the Fordney Tariff, a seemingly small tax which is multiplied manifold by the time a yard of white cotton fabric reaches the ultimate user.

The chemical duties are defended under the camouflage of patriotism, on the allegation that the chemical industries need "protction" in time of peace that they may be ready to make explosives in time of war Here a strange story is involved. An amendment of November 4, 1917 to the Trading with the Enemy Act authorized the taking over of German patents, as also copyrights, by the Alien Property Custodian, which A. Mitchell Palmer reported as "the most important piece of constructive work which has been possible in my department." Accordingly, he made a proposition to the chemical manufacturers which resulted in the formation of the Chemical Foundation, Inc., under the presidency of Francis P. Garvan, a lawyer representing these manufacturers, appointed that same month manager of the New York office of the Alien Property Custodian, who was to be Mr. Palmer's successor.

In due course Mr. Garvan, then become Alien Property Custodian, sold to this company, OF WHICH HE WAS PRESIDENT, 4,800 German chemical patents for $250,000, tho worth millions, with the understanding that the remainder of the half million 6% stock of the corporation was to be used to "prosecute with the utmost vigor infringement proceedings," in case the German owners undertook to avail themselves of the rights granted them by United States patents. This sale, it should be noted, was made in 1919, after the close of the war and in supposedly peace times.

In Mr. Garvan's dual capacity, one of his first steps later as president of the Chemical Foundation was to buy, for propagandist free distribution to public libraries, 5000 copies of Slosson's admirably popular book on "Creative Chemistry," with a special preface by a leading chemist urging that "our public must insist that its representatives in Congress preserve that independence in chemical manufacturing which the war has forced upon us" as against "unscrupulous competing nations."

Contracts were accordingly made with the chemical manufacturers for the use of these patents, largely with great trusts of enormous wealth and power. Thus, instead of a temporary war measure, involving the use of these patents during the war, our own "unscrupulous competing nation" made a wholesale robbery of properties which we had bound ourselves to protect, thereby going farther than England which had licensed the use of patents and copyrights for war purposes, and violating the American principle of the sanctity of private property even in time of war.

In startling contrast, was the creditable course of the chief combatants, France and Germany, which continued to respect patents and copyrights, in accordance with the principles of international law and the rights guaranteed by them to alien patentees. In fact, in February, 1923, while the Ruhr occupation was in full swing, the French government, as reported in a cablegram to the New York press, agreed to pay 50,000,000 francs to the owners of the German Haber process for the manufacture of synthetic ammonia and thence nitrates for fertilizers in peace and explosives in war times.

Thus, under pretense of patriotism, our nation has been placed in the despicable position of filching for a paltry quarter million, thousands of patents, for one of which the French nation paid millions of dollars—to which the chemical schedule of the mad tariff adds another iniquity in robbing, not German owners, but the American people thru tariff duties which enable chemical trusts to extort millions of dollars indirectly from their pockets.

The present administration has since brot suit to annul this sale in which "seller and buyer were the same." Simultaneously Garvan has been sending out from the Chemical Foundation to professors of economics and other teachers an edition of "The Riddle of the Rhine" by Major L. febure, a book which insists upon the destruction or limitation of German chemical industries making fertilizers and other products because in time of war they could be turned to chemical munitions—an argument which could be turned to limiting or destroying the steel industry because in time of war that makes shells. This political and commercial propagandism of the Chemical Foundation is based on the accursed and disastrous theory that to preserve peace we must be ready to wage war and that in self-defense we must drastically limit the prosperity of a competing nation by peace-time economic war.

The most important company in the field of the Chemical Foundation, Inc., is the Allied Chemical and Dye Corp., organized late in 1920 as a merger of the Barrett Co., General Chemical Co., National Aniline and Chemical Co., Inc., Solvay Process Co., so that it is now "the largest factor" in the industry and "one of the largest corporations in America" (Wall Street Magazine, Feb. 3, 1923). Its high capitalization of 2,119,000 shares of common stock without par value but on a basis of $5 per share—subject to preferred stock and a funded debt of $7,300,000—based on assets stated at $250,000,000 and on estimated earnings, was criticized as excessive. At the close of 1922, however, it reported $277,000,000 assets, $126,000,000 surplus (above comon stock at $5 per share) and after allowance for Federal taxes, its net earnings were $15,114,954. BEING, AFTER INTEREST AND PREFERRED DIVIDEND, $6 PER SHARE ON COMMON STOCK. The asset value of the common stock, deducting good will and patents, is reckoned at $60 per share, against a current market price of $65. The 7% preferred stock has reached about $115, while the market value of common stock has varied from $55, lowest, to $91, highest.

A second great corporation is the Du Pont Nemours Co., whose directors recently by a stock dividend of 50% increased the common stock to $95,000,000, in advance of which are $17,000,000 preferred stock and 30 778 000 ten year 7½% obligations (due 1931)- a total capitalization of $142,000 000 for this protected industry. It includes the great factories for gunpowder and explosives and a number of minor industries. Its capital overflowed its own coffers, and as one of its speculations it became owner of 27% of the stock of the General Motors Corporation and later obtained control by help of J. P. Morgan & Co. thru acquiring in all approximately 7,500,000 shares of General Motors Corp. stock. The net sales of the Du Pont Nemours Co. were $72,000,000 in 1922, as compared with $55,000,000 in 1921, and its net income was $12,900,000 in 1922, as compared with $7,250,000 in 1921. The earnings applicable to common stock amounted to $8.43 per share in 1922 as compared with $2 35 in 1921, its year of depression, and the immediate prospects of the Company are such that i s increased common stock has sold as high as $124.

The chemical industry, by help partly of the seizure of the German patents, a war measure continued as a peace-time theft, and partly of the embargo on German dyes, the logical acme of "protection," is able, according to a report from the Tariff Commission, to boast that it has secured over 90% of the American dye trade and produced an excess supply for exportation greater than present importation, estimated figures for 1922 being, 64,000,000 pounds of dye products, 4,000,000 pounds imports and 7,000,000 pounds exports.

The French cordon around the Ruhr with its chemical industries has stopped the exportation of certain German dyes which our textile factories must still have and surreptitious dealings have combined with the excessive tariff to increase their price many fold and add a new burden to the consumer. It is stated on the other hand that the average cost of dyes has been reduced from $1.26 in war-year 1917 to $0.63 in 1922,—an average which, without knowledge of the full circumstances and component proportion, may be a misleading as the hospital report that the average age of patients was 35, one patient being 69 and the other one year old. On the "protectionist" theory this "infant industry," already a giant, should no longer require protection, but a point has never been reached when an infant industry is willing to own itself grown up.

Such are the octopus trusts which ask "protection" out of the pocketbooks of the American people on the pleas of independence from the unscrupulous competition of the German chemical inudstry and the need of continuing preparation for war by help of high taxes in times of peace. Thus war is made the interest of these enormously powerful corporations, ramifying everywhere, which are enabled thru protective duties to hold up the prices of bleaches, dyes, chemicals and drugs needed for our textile and other industries and for all our people in sickness and in health. No more collossal imposition has ever been made upon the American people.

New York Day-by-Day

NEW YORK, Aug. 24—Thots while strolling aroung New York—Forty Second street—east of the avenue. Fruits. Bon-bons. And bright jacketed books. Gaudy hotels glowing with grandeur. Kodak shops. Luggage and faked steamer labels. D. W. Griffith.

The bubbling life around Grand Central. Ice cream cones. Red balloons. Racing red caps. A stunted jockey of long ago selling souvenirs. The station's high ceiled rotunda. Like a cathedral. Groups of immigrants in charge of labor agents.

Lexington Avenue's Soho. Cabbage smells. Piano box cafes. Fifty cent lodging houses. Rasping phonograph. Idlers listening emotional sobs. Croatians. Poles. emtoional sobs. Croatians. Poles. Greeks. And Lithuanians.

Fashionable Murray Hill around the corner. Frock coats and pearl spats. The two men who always guard the Pierpont Morgan home. Superannuated spinsters who sit behind laced curtained windows. Dreaming of the days of saccharine chivalry.

Whatever became of Sergeant York? The site of an old inn where Richard Harding Davis used to loaf. A millinery shop trying to revive the Floradora hat. A cat and six kittens Street Arabs. An organ grinder taking his monkey to a hospital. Wonder if someone needs a gland.

An overturned street car. Something fascinating to me about polishing brass signs. Or laying tile floors. Not so much fly swatting this season. Here's a block without an automobile. O, I see. "Detour" signs at each end.

Grocery store clerks in blue uniforms. They'll be putting gold eplauts on garbage men next. Still—that's none of my business. There goes a fire wagon. Business of walking fast. But not acting as tho I care to see a fire.

Society has its official jester. He is a man in his early forties who wears a toupee and has a very solemn visage. He has no means of support yet he is invited to fashionable Long Island house parties, on yachting cruises and has gone to Europe several times with private parties. It is his job to make a jaded crew laugh. He is accepted as one of them.

Cokey Luke, a Times Square character, was picked up the other day for vagrancy. He used to be a clog dancer in Tony Pastor's hall until drugs ruined his professional career. He said that for five years he had not been out of his room save a few hours after midnight to forage for his stimulant.

I had a throb of sympathy for the forlorn soul in one of the downtown residential cross streets who sat at the edge of the sidewalk on a camp stool pounding on a portable typewriter. I didn't ask, but I have an idea that his wife was cleaning up his den.

Several brokerage houses in the mid-town Wall Street have outfitted their messengers with rubber tired roller skates. They whiz thru the district with lightning speed. It has been found they can make greater speed on skates than on bicycles due to the heavy street traffic.

The latest in cabaret innovations is staged at a cafe in Greenwich Village, popular after midnight. The management announces "Savage Dancers from Wildest Africa." They wear rings in their noses and look extremely fercious. The Village, however, is used to "wild women."

DARKEN GRAY HAIR, LOOK YOUNG, PRETTY

Sage Tea and Sulphur Darkens So Naturally That Nobody Can Tell

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

Oh, where is now the smiling jay who lately raised his cry, "I'm getting better every day, and all my ailments fly?" I saw him in the clanging mart a few short moons ago; his noble ardor broke my heart, it bored and jarred me so. For I could never follow fads, however much I try; for pills I've always blown my scads and will until I die. And I feel silly when I say such empty words as these, "I'm getting better every day, I'm shedding all disease." And where are now the faddists brave who thought that slogan high would save them from an early grave? They are not marching by. I do not meet them in the lane or by the Blue Front store; I do not hear that glad refrain around me anymore I wander through the alleys gray and hear no gent declaim, "I'm getting better every day, the gout has quit my frame." Jim Bungstead threw away the crutch that he had used so long, and said, "I do not need it much, I'm getting hale and strong." He threw it from his cottage door and gave a loud "hurroo!" He only used that one before and now he's using two I'm loaded down with fatal ills, but try no healing fads, I stick to Dr Bunkum's pills, and Dinghat's liver pads

MILLION DOLLARS DAMAGE IN COLO. FROM DAM BURST

FOWLER, Colo., Aug. 23 — Flood waters from the Great Apishapa dam and reservoir which broke late Wednesday were this morning slowly receding and further damage from the swirling currents was believed past.

Many farmhouses were swept from their foundations by the terrible impact of a wall of water 30 feet high and in pleaces nearly a hundred feet deep and carried down into the Arkansas river miles away.

A heavy loss of live stock was suffered, a conservative estimate of the entire damage was more than a million of dollars. No loss of life had been reported at six o'clock this afternoon.

Messengers were sent in all directions warning of the serious condition of the dam before it broke. When the dam gave way later, it is believed that nearly all if not all had reached places of safety.

The Rockyford dam which late last night was believed in danger of going out as a result of the added flood of waters was said this morning to have withstood the shock and would safely take care of its added burden.

A report that LaJunta was under eight feet of water could not be confirmed.

Wagon roads and bridges were washed out in numerous places. Santa Fe tracks were at various points carried out by the flood, but railroad officials said these would be repaired in the course of the day.

CLEVELAND MAYOR TO RUN FOR GOV.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 24 Mayor Fred Kohler, who made Cleveland "live within her income" and painted the city it orange and black, will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor next year, according to apparently well authenticated reports in city hall circles today.
Mayor Kohler, however, declaring that he is not a candidate for any office refused to admit the truth of the report. Friends, however, declared this was merely dictated by good politics as the primary is still a year distant.
Other reports said that former Governor Harry L. Davis and Col. Carrel A. Thompson would also be entered in the race.

Johnson - Hoover Feud Threatens to Split The Republican Party

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24—A long smouldering fued between Senator Hiram Johnson of California and Secretary of Commerce Hoover leaped today into open warfare with prospects of developing a wide chasm within the Republican party. Recalling the Republican defeats which followed the Taft-Roosevelt and Johnson-Hughes fued, party leaders fear the break will have its effect on the next election.

Greater significance is attached to the quarrel because both Johnson and Hoover have been mentioned for the nomination for president in 1924.

The break came when Johnson issued a statement charging that followers of Hoover in California had taken personal mail from one of his friends to use against him politically. Johnson charged one letter so obtained contained a statement, he wrote last May, in which he said he would not be a candidate for president in 1924. Use of this statement now, it is said, has handicapped the senator's friends who are preparing to launch a presidential boom in his behalf.

The Johnson-Hoover feud started years ago when both men had only state followings in California.

In his statement—a declaration of war—Johnson challenged his "opposition" to a finish fight in California for the state's delegation to the 1924 Republican convention. Declaring he would contest for a "progressive delegation" political observers here believed Johnson literally had thrown his hat into the presidential ring.

While Johnson would not add to the statement, Hoover also remained silent. Shown a copy of Johnson's charges, the secretary said he had no reply to make "at that time."

Tho both are Republicans, Hoover and Johnson are as far apart politically as the poles. Johnson is a progressive and Hoover a conservative. Johnson is a leader of the senate irreconcilables and Hoover is a leader of Republican League of Nations advocates.

Johnson opposes the world court plan, Hoover helped to write it.

DOLLINGS CHIEFS DENY CHARGE OF FRAUD DEALINGS

Dollings Co., of Ohio, now in the hands of receivers, today filed a demurrer in the Franklin-co common pleas court in connection with the suit instituted by stockholders, who allege that stock in the company and its subsidiaries had been sold thru fraud and misrepresentation.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 24—With certain union officials voicing the threat of a sympathetic walkout of bituminous miners in the event of a hard coal miners' strike September 1 John Marks, vice president from District No. 2 of the central Pennsylvania soft coal region, and John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, resumed their conferences here today.

Lewis declined to admit that the conference with Marks had to do with the possibility of a sympathetic strike, reiterating he and Marks were discussing "internal policies."

It is known, however, that Marks expressed to Lewis the desire of the soft coal miners to aid the anthracite miners in any way in the event of a strike. Marks admitted to reporters that should the hard coal men strike, his men would be eager to walk out in sympathy, but at the same time he pointed out that the soft coal miners have a contract with the operators which does not expire until next March. Lewis informed reporters that "The United Mine Workers organization never breaks a contract."

According to Marks the 48,000 miners in his district would favor a sympathetic strike if the offer of John C. Brydon, president of the national coal association to flood the anthracite consuming territory is put in force by the government.

Slave to Be Dominant Race

"The collectivistic tendencies of the Slavic peoples, in my opinion, will make of them the dominant race of the future. Collectivistic civilization will spread over Europe from the East, where the leaders of the future will be born.
